Coming Together To Promote Community Health –
Connecting Science and Practice

Spring Conference
Bellevue Hilton
June 19, 2009

Goal:
To bring together community and university partners to expand and deepen partnerships for graduate nursing education by learning about issues of linking science to practice, and practice to science.

Objectives:
By the end of this conference, participants will:

- 1) Identify issues involved in moving scientific findings into health program and policy work.
- 2) Identify University of Washington and community organizational strengths to promote the connection between practice and science to improve community health.
- 3) Brainstorm ways UW School of Nursing students can contribute to community organizational goals through their capstone projects.
